
Team Leader Nature Conservation Europe in Berlin

For our European Wetlands Team in the International Department at the NABU Headquarters in Berlin, we are looking for a Team Leader (m/f/d) as soon as possible.

NABU has been committed to protecting people and nature since 1899. With more than 900,000 members and supporters, it is the environmental association with the largest membership in Germany. We are proud of our 70,000 volunteers in almost 2,000 local groups and of our employees, who are committed to nature conservation and environmental protection on a daily basis.

NABU has also been implementing EU LIFE projects for the protection and renaturation of peatlands for several years. Combating the biodiversity and climate crises through implementing nature-based solutions will remain a focus of our work in Europe in the future.

We offer regular training and further education to maintain and promote the know-how of our dynamic and professionally highly qualified team. Fair payment, job ticket/Germany ticket, varied work models and a family-friendly atmosphere are a matter of course for us. As well as a trustful cooperation and the identification with our motto "We are what we do - the conservationists".

Your tasks:

- You are a contact person and expert on topics of peatland and wetland protection - as a sparring partner in your team and as a participant in international conferences and events.
- you will lead the existing team of currently 7 people and will be responsible for budget planning and oversight.
- You will build up a Europe-wide network of internal and external partners and monitor current political developments on the European and international level with regard to the protection and restoration of peatlands and other wetland types.
- You will coordinate and support the conception of new projects and the acquisition of third-party funding.

Your profile:

- You have successfully completed a university degree in one of the following fields: Natural/environmental sciences, politics, law or business administration and have several years of relevant professional experience on a national and international level.
- You have relevant experience in the exploration, protection, or restoration of peatlands and other wetland types.

For more info, please visit:
www.NABU.de

For queries

NABU Federal Office
Thomas Tennhardt
Head of International Affairs

Tel. +49 (0)30.284 984 1720

- You have already successfully demonstrated your cooperative, friendly and respectful leadership style.
- You have highly developed communication skills, are diplomatic and open-minded and are able to work efficiently and competently – also in intercultural teams.
- You are business fluent in German and English.

Our offer:

- a pleasant, appreciative working atmosphere as well as a varied, responsible job in a committed team
- a permanent employment relationship
- Extensive professional training and development opportunities
- Work-life balance with 30 days of vacation, flexible working hours (up to 40 hours) and the possibility of mobile working by arrangement
- Attractive additional offers, e.g. Job Ticket/Germany Job Ticket, Job Bike, preventive health programs, sabbaticals

Do you identify with our goals and would you like to contribute your skills?

Then we look forward to receiving your application! Please state your earliest possible starting date and your salary expectations. Please use the procedure described at www.NABU.de/jobs/tlwetlands for your application.